

We have been challenged!

What is the star sign of the average Skeptic?

It happens to all of us from time to time.

A new acquaintance asks, "And what is your star sign?" Despite the best intentions, a discussion on astrology ensues, in which you try and explain the scientific evidence concerning the influence of the stars, and the outcome is

"Yes, you're a typical whatsit. All sceptics are whatsits."

In order to test this claim, and to answer the question that is on everyone's lips, we ask for your assistance in conducting a survey of Skeptics' sun signs. To test the position that any large group of people, be they Skeptics, dentists or even astrologers, will have a fairly even distribution of sun signs as long as the sample is large enough, we ask that all readers who would describe themselves as Skeptics answer the questions below and send their replies to:

Australian Skeptics, PO Box E324, St James 2000.

The results of the survey, whatever they might be, will be published in a future issue of the Skeptic. All personal details will remain confidential - the name will only be used to check against our mailing list (one entry per subscriber, please) in order to avoid unfair stacking of the result, and the second half of the form will be sent to an independent assessor (without the name).

Thank you for your assistance.

Please complete and return to: Aust Skeptics, PO Box E324, St James 2000

Name:

State/territory:

My date of birth is : / /

Please do not write below this line -----

Sun sign nominal :

Sun sign actual :

Listed :